DETAILED ACTION

1. A telephone call was made to Roland Schindler on 06/11/09 to request an oral election to the above restriction requirement, but did not result in an election being made.

PCT: Lack of Unity

Election/Restrictions

2. Restriction to one of the following inventions is required under 35 U.S.C. 121:
 - I. Claim(s) 1-25, drawn to a method of coating, classified in class 427, subclass 256.
 - II. Claim(s) 26-29, drawn to coated products, classified in class 428, subclass 1.1.

Posteriori

3. Lack of unity of invention may become apparent under “a posteriori,” that is, after taking the prior art into consideration: the independent claims appears to be drawn to A + X and A + Y, and the unity of invention (i.e. species) presents “a posteriori” as A being common to both claims, where the prior art teaches A.

The inventions listed as Groups I-II do not relate to a single general inventive concept under PCT Rule 13.1 because, under PCT Rule 13.2, they lack the same or corresponding special technical features for the following reasons: the special technical feature which is referred to Annex B of Appendix A1 of the MPEP (Administrative Instructions under the PCT: "Unity of Invention"). The express "special technical features" is defined as meaning those technical features that define a contribution which each of the inventions, considered as a whole, makes over the prior art" with respect to novelty and inventive step (Rule 13.2). Unity exists only when there is a technical relationship among the claimed inventions involving one or more of the same or corresponding claimed special technical features. In this case, the technical feature shared by each invention is: lyophobic or lyophilic surface patterns on a substrate.

Art Unit: 1792

The question of unity of invention has been reconsidered retroactively by the examiner in view of the search performed; a review of EP1011298, makes clear that the inventions of the groups I-II lack the same or corresponding special technical feature due to novelty and, or inventive step being deficient. In this case, the group lacks special technical feature due to a lack of inventive step because the cited reference(s) appear to demonstrate that the claimed technical feature does not define a contribution which each of the inventions, considered as a whole, makes over the prior art. For example, EP1011298 teaches forming a pattern on a substrate that has affinity to a fluid (lysophilic). Accordingly, the prior art of the record supports restriction of the claimed subject matter in to the groups as mentioned immediately above.

Election of species

1. This application contains claims directed to the following patentably distinct species of the following:

- Coating solution

- a. Solvent-based
- b. Gelatin-based
- c. Polymeric-based
- Additives to coating solution
- d. Carbon nanotubes
- e. Liquid crystal material

The species are independent or distinct because claims to the different species recite the mutually exclusive characteristics of such species. In addition, these species are not obvious variants of each other based on the current record.

Applicant is required under 35 U.S.C. 121 to elect a single disclosed species for prosecution on the merits to which the claims shall be restricted if no generic claim is finally held to be allowable. Currently, claims 1-7, 11, 14-29 are generic.

There is an examination and search burden for these patentably distinct species due to their mutually exclusive characteristics. The species require a different field of search (e.g., searching different classes/subclasses or electronic resources, or employing different search queries); and/or the prior art applicable to one species would not likely be applicable to another species; and/or the species are likely to raise different non-prior art issues under 35 U.S.C. 101 and/or 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph.

Applicant is advised that the reply to this requirement to be complete must include (i) an election of a species to be examined even though the requirement may be traversed (37 CFR 1.143) and (ii) identification of the claims encompassing the elected species, including any claims subsequently added. An argument that a claim is allowable or that all claims are generic is considered nonresponsive unless accompanied by an election.

The election of the species may be made with or without traverse. To preserve a right to petition, the election must be made with traverse. If the reply does not distinctly and specifically point out supposed errors in the election of species requirement, the election shall be treated as an election without traverse. Traversal must be presented at the time of election in order to be considered timely. Failure to timely traverse the requirement will result in the loss of right to petition under 37 CFR 1.144. If claims are added after the election, applicant must indicate which of these claims are readable on the elected species.

Should applicant traverse on the ground that the species are not patentably distinct, applicant should submit evidence or identify such evidence now of record showing the species to be obvious variants or clearly admit on the record that this is the case. In either instance, if the examiner finds one of the species unpatentable over the prior art, the evidence or admission may be used in a rejection under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) of the other species.

Upon the allowance of a generic claim, applicant will be entitled to consideration of claims to additional species which depend from or otherwise require all the limitations of an allowable generic claim as provided by 37 CFR 1.141.

Conclusion

4. No claim is allowed.

Art Unit: 1792

5. All the pending claims are subject to restriction/election requirement.
